

CIRCULAR HEAD MAYOR DARYL QUILLIAM'S MESSAGE 20 MARCH 2018

It is now just six months until the next elections for local government begin. With this in mind, now is a good time for anyone interested in standing for a position on Council to start to find out further information and think about attending council meetings to see what is required of Councillors. If anyone is interested in standing, I would be delighted to speak to any potential candidates. I am sure that our Deputy Mayor Jan Bishop, other councillors or our General Manager Scott Riley would be happy to speak to you, so please contact Council if you're interested. It would be great to see some more young people and women stand this year. There will also be workshops held later this year to help interested people understand what is required to be a Councillor.

Last week along with Councillors and Council staff I attended the annual Soroptimist Awards, recognising another eight unsung heroines in Circular Head held on International Women's Day. Sandra McCarthy, Deb Mainwaring, Alice Carson, Vicki Clarke, Lynette Scolyer, Maryanne Smith, Sue Odgers and Lynne Bramich were all recognised with awards on the night. Congratulations to all of these women who were certainly worthy of this honour and well done to the Soroptimist club for putting on another great event.

The first meeting was held recently of the reformed Arthur Pieman Management Committee, which was announced by the Government in January. Locky Avery is the new Chairman of this committee, which had been in recess for three years. This region is widely used by people from not only our district but from most areas in our state so I look forward to the outcomes during the next few years.
